the quantification of the likelihood of occurrence or probability of flooding (eg. a flood as big as, or bigger than, the 1:100 risk annual flood has a risk of 1 in 100 of occurring in any one year. This is equivalent to a 1% AEP flood and the 100 year ARI flood). (See also Annual Exceedence Probability and Average Recurrence Interval.)

SERVICE BAY:

SITE:

any land on which development is carried out, or is proposed. The land may include the whole or part of one allotment or lot, or more than one allotment, if they are contiguous to each other.

SITE COVERAGE:

that portion of net site area a site covered by a building, fixed structure or outdoor storage area, but not including unroofed parking areas.

For residential developments, the following are not included for the purpose of calculating site coverage:

- a basement that does not extend more than one metre above ground level to the top of the slab; and
- pedestrian awnings adjoining the street frontage.
- Eaves up to a maximum of 600 millimetres in width.

For commercial development, the following are not included for the purpose of calculating site coverage:

- a basement that does not extend more than one metre above ground level to the top of the slab;
- pedestrian awnings adjoining the street frontage;
- unenclosed pedestrian decks adjoining the street frontage; and
- transparent or translucent roof structures.

SOFTSCAPE:

STOREY:

that space within a building which is situated between the floor of one level and the floor of the next level above, or if there is no level above, the top of the ceiling above. The term includes any useable space on the roof area covered by impermeable material. When calculating the number of storeys to determine compliance with the Planning Scheme, or sections which control the height of any building or structure, the number of storeys shall be determined either as:

- the actual number of spaces between levels;
- the number of storeys calculated by dividing the distance in metres or part thereof between the top of the floor of the ground level and the top of the ceiling of the topmost level by:
 - a) three metres in the case of a residential use;
 - b) four metres in the case of a commercial use;

whichever is the greater, provided that a ground floor level that does not exceed 4.5 metres in height shall be assessed as one storey only. Any fraction, which results from the above calculation, shall constitute a storey.

However, the following provisions also apply:

- the two topmost storeys of the building shall not be included in the calculation of building height where they are used exclusively for plant rooms containing heating or cooling, ventilation, lift and other equipment, water tanks, service units and maintenance facilities or common access stairs;
- basements which extend less than one metre from the average finished ground level to the top of the slab above do not constitute a storey; and
- for buildings featuring a stepped design, the number of storeys shall be calculated as the greatest number of storeys in any vertical plane.

STORM TIDE FLOODING:

flooding along coastal areas and the tidal reaches of water bodies associated with intense storm events. (Factors that contribute to storm tide flooding include inverted barometer effects, wind set-up, wave set-up and tidal effects, together with any other factors that increase tidal water levels.)

STORMWATER FLOODING:

inundation by local run off. (Stormwater flooding can be caused by local run off exceeding the capacity of an urban stormwater drainage system, or by the backwater effects of mainstream flooding causing the urban stormwater drainage system to overflow.)

TANDEM CAR PARKING:

an angle parking space for two vehicles, where the second vehicle is parked obstructing the exit of the first vehicle.

TOTAL AREA OF SIGNAGE:

the surface area of a sign (or signs) that is able to be viewed external to the site where it is located. For a sign that has only one plane of signage, it is the surface area of that plane, eg. a sign painted or fixed on a wall. If the sign has an irregular shape, the total area of signage is deemed to be the total area of the smallest square or rectangle that entirely encloses the sign's shape. If a sign has two faces, the total surface area of both faces must be included. If the sign has a three dimensional form, the total area of signage is determined by slicing a plane through its thickest part and enclosing the resulting sign section in a square or rectangle. The total sign area in such a case is then deemed to be twice the area of the resulting square or rectangle. Total area of signage is usually determined for each lot or per set distance of lot frontage - in some cases total area of signage is determined for each separate tenancy.

TOTAL USE AREA:

the sum of all the areas (exclusive of all walls and columns) of all storeys of a building which are used or intended for use for a particular purpose, plus any other area of a site which is used, or intended to be used, for the same purpose. The term does not include:

- areas (inclusive of all walls and columns) of any lift wells, lift motor rooms, air conditioning and associated mechanical or electrical plant and equipment rooms;
- areas of any staircases;
- areas of any common foyer where these are not being used for commercial or retail purposes;
- areas of any public toilets;
- areas of any staff toilets, washrooms, recreation areas and lunchrooms, provided that such areas are not open to persons other than staff; and
- areas used for the access, parking and associated manoeuvring of motor vehicles.

Note: Watercourse is, at the time of printing, defined by the Water Act 2000 as follows:

Watercourse means a river, creek or stream in which water flows permanently or intermittently:

- in a natural channel, whether artificially improved or not;
- in an artificial channel that has changed the course of the watercourse;

but, in any case, only:

- unless a regulation under paragraph (d), (e) or (f) declares otherwise at every place upstream of the (“point A”) to which the spring tide normally flows and reflows, whether due to a natural cause or to an artificial barrier;
- if a regulation has declared an upstream limit for the watercourse, the part of the river, creek or stream between the stream limit and point A;
- if a regulation has declared a downstream limit for the watercourse, the part of the river, creek or stream upstream of the limit;
- if a regulation has declared an upstream and a downstream limit for the watercourse, the part of the river, creek or stream between the upstream and downstream limits.

“Watercourse” includes the bed and banks and any other element of a river, creek or stream confining or containing water.

“Bed and banks” for a watercourse or lake means land over which the water of the watercourse or lake normally flows, or that is normally covered by the water, whether permanently or intermittently; but does not include land adjoining or adjacent to the bed or banks that is from time to time covered by floodwater (Water Act 2000 definition).

WATERBODY:

an enclosed or semi enclosed body of water such as a lake or dam.

- estuaries and intertidal flats;
- areas of sea grass, salt marsh, mangrove;
- areas above high water mark influenced by freshwater such as Melaleuca paperbark forests and sedgeland, and by brackish or tidal water such as Casuarina forests;
- freshwater rivers, creeks, lakes, lagoons and streams; and
- man-made canals and lakes.

WILDLIFE:

any taxon or species of animal, plant, protista, prokaryote or virus.

WILDLIFE HABITAT:

areas that provide habitat for wildlife.

WORKS FOR INFRASTRUCTURE:

includes the design and construction of roads, stormwater drainage and the provision of public utilities and services including sewerage reticulation, water supply reticulation, electricity and street lighting, reticulated gas and ancillary works referred to as construction of car parking areas, construction of driveways in rural properties, stormwater management devices and sediment and erosion control devices. Works for Infrastructure includes works associated with Reconfiguring a Lot and/or Material Change of Use.
